Doings of the Gay World at the Seaside Resorts.

The Festivities Are Duplicates of Those That Occur Each Year-Wherenbouts of Prominent Society People and Others Less Notable

Nothing happens. The duliness of last week will be exceeded by the duliness of the week to come. While the social record here, however, is absolutely blank, there is no lack of news from the chain of fashionable resorts along the North lantic coast. The gay doings at those eces ought to make what Artemus Ward used to call "mighty interesting reading," but some way they don't. The irrepressible "chiel" who is forever season will be here—a rare chance around notes faithfully every dance, din to clothe the boys economically, ner, race, or engagement, as it happens, but when it is set down in black and white, with the usual gaudily-tinted adthe boy select any Woolen Suit in ditions, for all the world to see, the think-our stock and we'll allow you 20 ing reader-if a person of that superior type ever hobnobs with a society columncannot well keep from reflecting on the monotonously dull methods rich people take of throwing their money away. Plainly, what Queen Fashion needs is an Edgen or Marconi to invent some newer ways of entertaining her votaries than the cut and dried pastimes that were probably popular in the good old days before the flood. There are women in the social world whose eleverness shines out with the brilliant glare of a locomotive headlight. There are other women in the same fold whose intellects are as dim and fitful as the flickerings of a blue headed match. It would seem that the bright ones would assert their superiority by doing original things to outshine their less gifted sisters; but they don't. They all give dinners and dances and things just like the antediluvian ladies did-for all we know to the contrary-and just as their posterity will likely continue to do until the end of time. All of which is apt to set the "thinking" person to figuring out that, after all, the pleasures of the ordinary every-day world are as satisfactory as those of that shining king-dom whose sign is a 4 and two naughts.

Of course, there are exceptions. How else would there be rules? Mrs. Oelrichs is a dazzling instance, as witness her circus of yesterday afternoon! After plecing together the advance stories of that spectacular happening and the specials that came over the wires last night, Mrs. Oelrichs evidently had what Mr. George Ade would call the Time of Mr. George Ade would call the Time of her Life. The "greatest allied show of this or any other earth" had Mr. Harry Lehr for its ringmaster. It seems he took lessons from the Real Thing (Mr. Ade, again) to learn the art of cracking his whip professionally, and ordered for the occasion a real, for-true ringmaster's costume, down to the red tassels on his high and glossy boots. The menagerie included an elephant made of two society men, some hide, and a lot of straw, and it is said that Mr. William K. Vanderbilt, fr., impersonated an ostrich so true to life that all the ladies wanted to pluck his feathers for souvenirs. There was a barrel of plak lemonade and a series of sideshows, chief among the curiosities being a society woman "who does not know Harry Lehr weil enough to call him by his first name."

Ex-Senator Joseph S. Fowler of Tenessee has returned to Washington and is with Mrs. Hunt at Gloria Point, Tenleytown. He is in very feeble health and will be giad to see any of his old friends. Miss Clara Dumont, after some days at Gloria Point, has gone, with her cousin, Miss Constance Winn, of Baltimore, to Abington, Pa., and from thence will go to Atlantic City.

Mr. E. P. Bennett and Mr. Claude N. Bennett have gone to Buffalo, before visiting the St. Lawrence and Lakes George and Champlain. They will be absent two weeks and then return to Gloria Point.

Miss Alice Roosevelt, the eldest daugh-ter of the Vice President, is happily recovering from the operation she under went a day or two ago, at Roosevelt Hospital in New York. The family have been at their Oyster Bay house during the absence of Colonel Roosevelt in the Rockies, and it was there that Miss Roosevelt began to suffer from a molar abscess that grew so painful that its re-moval was advised by the family physician, and which was successfully done before the young lady's father arrived in New York.

New York.

Miss Roosevelt is about eighteen years of age, and a tall, graceful girl of the blonde type, bearing a striking resemblance to her distinguished father. She has been carefully educated and is well equipped for the exalted position she will hold in Washington society.

She will occupy an enviable position, as there are no young ladies of the Presidential family. She is of a rather retiring disposition, and more inclined to books than to the round of gayety; but nevertheless it is safe to predict that she will at once become a leader of the younger official set.

Capt. and Mrs. F. E. Chadwick, who have entertained a number of distin-guished guests during the summer at the naval war college at Newport, gave a dinner last night in honor of Count Sternberg at which several Washingtonians berg at which several Washingtonians were present. Yesterday morning Captain and Mrs. Chadwick invited a number of friends to attend a lecture given by their house guest, Rev. Percy Grant, rector of the Church of the Ascension. New York. After the lecture, Mr. Grant with Captain and Mrs. Chadwick and the members of the war college staff were entertained at luncheon by Mrs. Perry Belmont, at her villa, By-the-Sea.

Mr. Cornelius Mackensie has returned from Connecticut and is again at Gloria Point, Tenleytown.

Lady Curzon is at Braemer, Scotland, where she has a castle and where she will remain during September. In Octo-ber she will return to India. Mrs. Leiter, her mother, is with her.

Gen. Frederick D. Grant, Mrs. Grant, and Ulysses S. Grant have returned from their visit to the Prince and Princess Cantacuzens. Mr. and Mrs. Potter Pal-mer are still abroad and will visit the princess before they return.

Miss Frances Griscom, of Philadelphia, and well known in this city, is still abroad and is practicing daily under Benjamin Sayers at the golf links at North Berwick, Scotland. She intends return-ing in a short time and will play at the Baltusrol links this autumn.

Mrs. Edwin F. Austin and daughter, Miss Etta Austin, are spending the month of August at Atlantic City. They will re-turn by way of Buffalo.

The Misses Hilda and Alice Walters, of Georgetown, are at York Sulphur Springs.

NO DUTY ON EXPORTED COFFEE. a a Porto Rienn Import It Is No

F. A. Reeve, Acting Solicitor for the Treasury Department, in deciding the contention raised by Frederick Degetau, Resident Commissioner of Porto Rico, who claimed in a brief filed with the Secretary the United States into Porto Rico should prevail, held yesterday that Mr. Degetau's point was not well taken. Mr. Reeve in an exhaustive opinion on the case said that the act of Congress abolishing tariff duties on all merchandise imported into Porto Rico from the United States also In passing upon the case, Mr. Reeve

"By section 2 of the 'Foraker act' it is provided that the duties on goods import-ed into Porto Rico from ports other than those of the United States shall be the same as those upon goods imported into the United States from foreign countries, the United States from foreign countries, at great expense a card catalogue of the united States from the bean of provided that on all coffee in the bean of ground, imported into Forto Rico, there shall be levied and collected a duty of 5 cents per pound, any law or part of law cards contain the names of property holders.

Section 3 of the same act imposes upon goods going into Porto Rico from the United States a duty of 15 per cent of the duties upon like goods imported from foreign countries, provided that all articles on the free list in the United States, 'except' coffee' should be admitted into Porto Rico free of duty, when imported from the United States. The effect of this exception was, of course, to make coffee going into Porto Rico subject to a duty, though imported from the United States

"Thus the law was to remain until the Legislative Assembly of Porto Rico should provide a system of local taxation to meet the necessities of the local gov-ernment, and proclamation thereof made by the President.

"It is evident from the care with which coffee was excluded from the free list in the duty on any other article of mer-chandise.

"I have read with much care and in-terest the able and ingenious paper pre-sented by the Hon. F. Degetau, Resident Commissioner of Porto Rico, in which he contends that the duty on coffee, being a special protective duty, is not embraced by the words 'tariff duties' in the clause abolishing tariff duties on merchandise going into Porto Rico from the United States, but I am unable to acquiesce in his interpretation of those words, and in the distinction which he draws between a 'tariff duty' and 'a special protection duty.'

States, but I am unable to acquiesce in his interpretation of those words, and in the distinction which he draws between a tariff duty' and 'a special protection duty.

"The case seems to me to be one of mere indvertence on the part of Congress. It merely neglected to make the exception of coffee from the free list applicable as well after the adoption of the new system of taxation as during the existence of the 15 per centum duty system. This might have been done by inserting the words 'except coffee' in the act immediately after the words 'tariff duties on all merchandise going into Porto Rico from the United States.

"As the matter now stands, I see no way in which the duty can be neid to be in force, since the proclamation of the President, other than by reading the words 'except coffee' into the statute in the manner indicated above. This I think cannot be done by the department. Neither the courts nor the executive departments can supply inadvertences or omissions in an act of Congress, no matter how plainly they may appear.

"The foregoing observations apply only to the case of shipments of coffee into Porto Rico from the United States. As to shipments into Porto Rico from the United States. As to shipments into Porto Rico from the thied states as to shipments into Porto Rico from the thied states. As to shipments into Porto Rico from the thied states. The duty of 5 cents per pound still exists."

OPPOSE STREET RENAMING

Public Sentiment Seems Overwhelmingly Adverse to Change.

Say Officials, in Changing Maps, Tax Lists, and Several Records-

Opinions Expressed by Citizens.

The premature publication of the rerised list of streets in the suburban exubordinate in the Engineer Department has brought down upon the heads of the Commissioners a storm of protest from residents and property holders affected thereby. Happily the Jargon of names proposed for the streets has not been adopted, and there seems to be a probability that it will not be by the time the indignant people of the District are through stating their objections.

It is being made very plain in the let-ters and petitions sent to the Commissioners that the indiscriminate changing of street names to suit the requirements of a cast iron alphabetical system will contrary, it is being pointed out that the adoption of the names proposed will re-sult in much repetition of designations. which will confuse the postal authorities and the various agencies for the de-American Exposition, Niagara Fails, and livery of good, as well as drivers of pub-the Thousand Islands. lie vehicles and others. Furthermore, the proposed plan will result, say the objectors, in the wiping out of classical, significant and time-honored names and the substitution of those which mean nothing and which are merely arbitrarily fixed to fit into a plan of which, it is said by one of the protestants, a geographer would be ashamed

A prominent lawyer has pointed out that the Commissioners have no legal of the Treasury that the special duty of authority to make the changes proposed. "Coffee being upon the free list in the United States," said Mr. Reeve, "the object of this exemption was, of course, to protect the coffee industry in Porto Rica. Section 2 of the same act imposes upon plan increase the more the matter is in vestigated.

One indignant citizen has written a let ter to The Times asking that as much publicity as possible be given to the outrageous proposal of changing the street names. He says:

"As an interested éftizen of Washington I call your attention to the proposed changing of names of streets and avenues and ask you to comment on such whole sale murder.' I call your attention espe cially to Connecticut Avenue from Florida Avenue west, which is to be changed to Twenty-first, and this beautiful avenu mutflated. test against the promiscuous use of word place and the repetition of m according to this new nomenciature. T test against the promiscuous use of the word place' and the repetition of names according to this new nomenclature. There is a lack of originality in the scheme proposed which must be painfully apparent to any student of the geography of large cities. It seems to me a pily that your commission should not have requested the advice of outsiders especially fitted for this work and not connected with the District government. There is no city in the Union where reside so many geographers and topographers and where expert advice could be so easily obtained. I think that all these will agree with me that the word 'place' is both philologically and topographically a misnomer as applied to a street several blocks in length and indefinite possible extension.

"Any dictionary of place and personal names will be found to contain such a great wealth of suggestions that the lack of variety in your system and the duplication of names is surprising. Those of us living in the suburbs who have largely to depend upon the geographical sense, or lack of it, on the average driver or nor-tion of names is surprising. Inose of usliving in the suburbs who have largely to lack of it, on the average driver or porter, a man usually selected for the strength of his muscles rather than of his mind, are constantly annoyed by the difficulty of making it plain to such men how they may find certain localities in suburbs or subdivisions not yet thoroughly opened. The duplication of the names you now propose will double this difficulty, and that of itself should be sufficient answer to the proposal in this direction."

S. L. Lee, of 222 School Street northwest, in a letter to the Commissioners, gives his views as follows:
"It must be a false rumor that School Street is about to be rechristened by the Street is about to be rechristened by the Commissioners Fourteenth Place, for I cannot think the Commissioners capable of giving this idiotic title to a highly deserving fragment of the town. (It is not Fourteenth Place, is it?) However, they say it is always the unexpected that happens, so I cannot forbear raising a faint and feeble protest, which will, perhaps, have no more weight than any of us had when as babes at the baptismal font we were all unconscious of any wrong being perpettated upon us. "I think there is something in a name, and hoped the name of School Street, if changed, would be improved."

D. D. Aibert, sr., of 2417 Thirteenth Place, says in favor of the plan. "I desire to express to you my hearty commendation of the pomenclature of suburban streets as recently promulgated. You have made system, order, and harmony where heretofore: there has been just the opposite. At present many will protest and object to the change of names, but in a few years all will commend your wise action."

The Commissioners yesterday also received a petition signed by F. A. Johnson and thirteen other residents of Holmend Avenue, who voice their protest thus.

"We, the undersigned property owners and occupants of property fronting on Holmend Avenue, north of Columbia Heights, respectfully request you to disapprove of the proposed changes in street nomenclature whereby Holmead Avenue is designated as Thirteenth Place.

"We believe and know that this proposed change, if carried out, would result in great confusion and much inconvenience. Thirteenth Street proper contains the same numbers as Holmead Avenue, and there would be a constant mixing up of the two streets. Heilmead Avenue, is mamed after one of the oldest and most respected of Washington's earliest citizens. Its character is established. We feel and cherish strong sentiments for the street as it is named now, and we trust that we will not be competing to that at we will not be competing to hamcard name of Holmead Avenue. sition is developing on Columbia Heights to the proposed change in the names of streets, and I wish to express my hearty approval of the proposed change. I met quite a number of the people who live on the heights last evening and the change was discussed. I do not believe there will be any opposition to the change after a few months, when the people have become accustomed tion to the change after a few month when the people have become accustome

Capt. H. C. Newcomer, Acting Engine Capt. H. C. Newcomer, Acting Engineer Commissioner, in speaking of the matter yesterday, explained the authority under which the list of street names was compiled. He said that the Board a few months ago issued an order based upon the following statutes:
